About Snap Jazz Band

SNAP Jazz Band was born on June 7, 2001 in Drexel Hill, PA at 7:55 PM when Rob Hermans struck a piano chord to the temporal drum stylings of Steve "the kid" Mignogna. Joined soon after by regional singing legend Michael Nardi (his real name) and bassist Gene Halloran, the cleanest man in show business, SNAP arrived. A saxophone section was soon manned by "Cuz" DiCesare, mainstay of Philly's music scene, and Will Sadler, voted best new talent of 2006. Bill is also a columnist for a world famous saxophone website, as well as a columnist for TEMPO magazine for New Jersey band directors. Shortly after the addition of guitarist Tyler Travis, the band was signed to Lava Records and continue to perform under that label and it's management. Gary later brought his immense talents to the Keyboards when he replaced Rob on Keyboards. When Carlene and Janis joined SNAP Jazz Band, it was as if two Sirens had actually stepped out of the Odyssey and on to the stage. With their beauty and talent it was obvious that the band was complete.

Many who "think" music have tried to define what makes SNAP so popular with it's audiences ... but those who "feel" music know what makes people snap their fingers and tap their toes to SNAP, it's their unique charm and presence.

And it goes beyond their musicianship, it goes to their hearts. Their charm and presence is founded in the purity of their spirit. SNAP's history is their passion to perform for all audiences, to play for the people who made hits out of the songs they play. Many of those fans are now in Assisted Living and Nursing homes. SNAP brings the music to them, again.

But SNAP doesn't forget the children and grandchildren of their biggest Fans. SNAP includes modern standards as well. At a SNAP performance you'll hear the greatest songs by the greatest composers performed by the greatest artists ranging from Duke Ellington, Frank Sinatra, The Temptations, Nat King Cole, Bobby Darren, Ray Charles, Elvis, Van Morrison, Lionel Richie, and Nora Jones.
